The 2023 National Maritime Awards Honorees

The USS Constitution Museum will be recognized with the 2023 NMHS Walter Cronkite Award for Excellence in Maritime Education. Since 1972, the USS Constitution Museum has commemorated Constitution's history, serving as its educational voice collecting, preserving, and interpreting the artifacts that tell the stories of "Old Ironsides" and America's Ship of State. NMHS recognizes the museum's contributions to scholarship, its innovative work appealing to a global audience, and its presentation of the stories of our maritime heritage. In honoring the museum and recognizing its president Anne Grimes Rand, who has expertly guided the organization for over three decades, the Society also celebrates the 225th anniversary of Constitution's maiden voyage in 1798 and applauds her newest captain and first female commanding officer, CDR Billie J. Farrell, USN.

Congressman Joseph D. Courtney will be recognized with the 2023 NMHS Distinguished Service Award in recognition of his steadfast efforts to deliver funding for US Navy submarine procurement, most recently as part of the National Defense Authorization Act of 2023 and the FY 2023 Consolidated Appropriations Act. As Chairman of the House Seapower and Projection Forces Subcommittee, he championed funding for the production of two Virginia-class attack submarines per year with General Dynamics's Electric Boat division, and more recently for Columbia-class ballistic missile submarines. In pressing for the need of Virginia-class submarines, he earned the nickname "Two Sub Joe." We also salute Congressman Courtney's work with the Connecticut congressional delegation in obtaining funding for the future National Coast Guard Museum, where Americans will have the opportunity to immerse themselves in Coast Guard life and history through interactive exhibits and galleries designed to celebrate, engage, and inspire.

Oyster Recovery Partnership (ORP) will be honored with the inaugural 2023 NMHS Marine Conservation Award for their remarkable commitment to the health of the Chesapeake Bay through the successful restoration of its oyster populations. A single adult oyster can filter more than 50 gallons of water per day, and since 1994, with the support of major partners like the Maryland Department of Natural Resources and the University of Maryland Center for Environmental Science Horn Point Laboratory, ORP has planted more than 10 billion oysters on 3,000 acres of reef and recycled more than 260,000 bushels of shell. The Marine Conservation Award acknowledges their exemplary work as stewards of our waterways, protecting and restoring ecosystems, promoting the sustainable management of marine resources, safeguarding and improving the well-being of the communities that depend on these resources, and increasing public awareness about the importance of protecting marine environments.
